Commas in Argumentative Writing I

In the following table, you can see sentences containing one or more commas. The sentences, or socalled concordance lines, have been collected using the British National Corpus. This means that these sentences stem from a range of different academic texts that present authentic language use.

Tasks:

1. a) Examine the concordance lines and identify patterns of comma placement in academic writing. In each sentence, the comma in question is highlighted.

b) Deduce comma rules from the sentences.

(Hint: Are there specific words or constructions that require a comma? Where exactly is the comma placed?)
