

Shareholders elect the Board of Directors to represent their interests. This is done at the annual meeting. The Board then chooses management including the Chief Executive Officer, Chief Financial Officer and other high-level management. Management chooses and directs the employees needed to make the corporation successful